- The Customer and Trader Versions of the International Uniform EFP Transactions Agreement have not been substantively updated since they were first published in 2008.
- Following work of the FIA Law & Compliance Division (“L&C”), new/revised agreements were published last week.
- Specifically, the new/revised agreements include updated versions of both the Customer and Trader versions of the agreement, as well as four new versions of the agreement.

Context/Certain Substantive Aspects of New/Revised Agreements

- Contemplate governing bilateral transactions, i.e., EFRPs and block trades, under a single agreement
- Contemplate governing block transactions and EFRP types in addition to EFPs
- The blocks referenced under the agreements are not contemplated to be limited to those that are given-up
- Additional language around limit setting was added with the intent to reflect the practical realities of how limits are established in certain instances (see, e.g., Trader Version, Section 7)
- New concepts of Trade Break Transaction Adjustment and Trade Break Settlement Amount were added (see, e.g., Trader Version, Section 12)
- Certain versions of the new/revised agreements contemplate billing to different party(ies). For example, the Trader Version contemplates billing to one of the following: (1) Customer; (2) Trader; or (3) Customer's Clearing Broker. Per Section 18 of the Trader Version, the party to be billed may be selected on the Addendum to the agreement. "If Customer's Clearing Broker is selected as the party to be billed, then [additional] language shall apply."

About the US Documentation Library

FIA's US Documentation Library contains a wide range of guidance documents and template agreements and disclosures, separated by categories as set forth below.

Client Clearing and Execution Agreements –

FIA offers template agreements for market participants to use in negotiating clearing- and execution-related agreements with counterparties.

Standard Give-Up Agreements –

The FIA Law and Compliance Division publishes and periodically updates standard agreements governing the futures give-up process. FIA Tech in turn administers the Accelerate Docs through which brokers, traders and customers may electronically execute the standard give-up agreements. Firms may choose to use the standard agreements either manually in hardcopy form or electronically in Accelerate Docs.

LME Give-Up Agreements –

In addition to the Standard Trader and Customer Versions of the Give-Up Agreement, the FIA Law & Compliance Division makes available more tailored versions of give-up agreements for transactions executed on the London Metal Exchange (LME), where either or both the direct Executing or Clearing Broker is not an LME member firm. The LME Give-Up Agreements come in trader and customer versions and are specifically designed to comply with the LME's rules.

EFRP and Block Agreements –

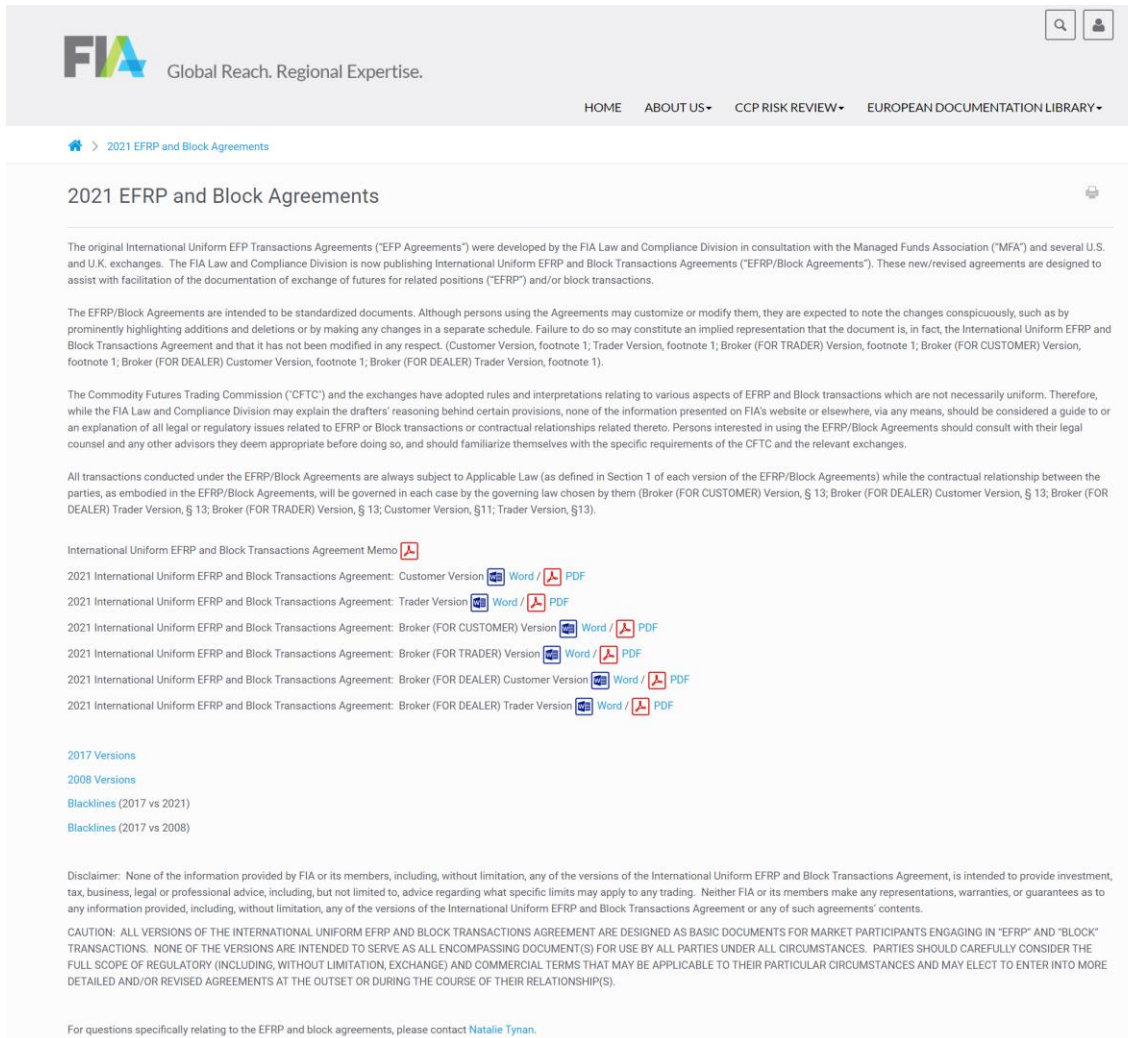

The original International Uniform EFP Transactions Agreements ("EFP Agreements") were developed by the FIA Law and Compliance Division in consultation with the Managed Funds Association ("MFA") and several U.S. and U.K. exchanges. The FIA Law and Compliance Division is now publishing International Uniform EFRP and Block Transactions Agreements. These new/revised agreements are designed to assist with facilitation of the documentation of EFRP and/or block transactions.

2021 EFRP and Block Agreements

The original International Uniform EFP Transactions Agreements ("EFP Agreements") were developed by the FIA Law and Compliance Division in consultation with the Managed Funds Association ("MFA") and several U.S. and U.K. exchanges. The FIA Law and Compliance Division is now publishing International Uniform EFRP and Block Transactions Agreements ("EFRP/Block Agreements"). These new/revised agreements are designed to assist with facilitation of the documentation of exchange of futures for related positions ("EFRP") and/or block transactions.

The EFRP/Block Agreements are intended to be standardized documents. Although persons using the Agreements may customize or modify them, they are expected to note the changes conspicuously, such as by prominently highlighting additions and deletions or by making any changes in a separate schedule. Failure to do so may constitute an implied representation that the document is, in fact, the International Uniform EFRP and Block Transactions Agreement and that it has not been modified in any respect. (Customer Version, footnote 1; Trader Version, footnote 1; Broker (FOR TRADER) Version, footnote 1; Broker (FOR CUSTOMER) Version, footnote 1; Broker (FOR DEALER) Customer Version, footnote 1; Broker (FOR DEALER) Trader Version, footnote 1).

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission ("CFTC") and the exchanges have adopted rules and interpretations relating to various aspects of EFRP and Block transactions which are not necessarily uniform. Therefore, while the FIA Law and Compliance Division may explain the drafters' reasoning behind certain provisions, none of the information presented on FIA's website or elsewhere, via any means, should be considered a guide to or an explanation of all legal or regulatory issues related to EFRP or Block transactions or contractual relationships related thereto. Persons interested in using the EFRP/Block Agreements should consult with their legal counsel and any other advisors they deem appropriate before doing so, and should familiarize themselves with the specific requirements of the CFTC and the relevant exchanges.

All transactions conducted under the EFRP/Block Agreements are always subject to Applicable Law (as defined in Section 1 of each version of the EFRP/Block Agreements) while the contractual relationship between the parties, as embodied in the EFRP/Block Agreements, will be governed in each case by the governing law chosen by them (Broker (FOR CUSTOMER) Version, § 13; Broker (FOR DEALER) Customer Version, § 13; Broker (FOR DEALER) Trader Version, § 13; Broker (FOR TRADER) Version, § 13; Customer Version, § 11; Trader Version, § 13).
